"I Am Doubtful of the Musical Arts Club; I Do Not Hold with Encouraging Mediocrity; Find Talent Worth Aiding"

By ROBERT DE BRUCE

At the suggestion of my friend, Mrs. Grace Howden, the president of the Musical Art Club, the editor of the Pine Cone has asked me to review the concert of the club in the lounge of the Del Monte Hotel last Saturday afternoon, at which they presented Vivian Larsen, pianist and Ervin Mautner, violinist.

I am very happy to do this. But whether every one concerned will be happy when I have done it is another matter.

Father Serra Day Of State-Wide Interest

The cause for the canonization of Carmel's Father Serra has been advanced to the extent that the California Bishops of the Catholic Church have set Sunday, November 22 aside as Father Serra Day throughout the State. Father Michael O'Connell told the Pine Cone yesterday.

To have a patron saint for California would be a matter of pride to the Catholics of this state as well as a spiritual consolation at a time of war and stress, and it should be a matter of great interest to non-Catholics as well, since the public interest contingent to the canonization will direct attention throughout the country to the Missions along the Camino Real and especially to Carmel Mission. Scholars and students of history will benefit, since part of the work of canonization involves an exhaustive search into the life of the candidate, and in this case it means that the gathering together and translation of thousands of letters and documents by Father Serra and about him by his contemporaries will make available a wealth of material on the events and background of his time.

The Franciscans at Santa Barbara have been entrusted with the assembling of material. Father Eric O'Brien has already collected over 200 letters written by Father Serra. The lectures Father Serra gave while a teacher in a monastery in Spain are being translated.

Once the canonization has taken place, Catholics throughout the nation will come to the tomb of the Saint—here—in Carmel.

C. D. on the Upswing—

Things look brighter for the Carmel Civilian Defense Organization than they have in months. After working off steam criticizing his critics, the mayor, at the Executive Council meeting Monday, took the action his critics had recommended. He appointed a committee to choose a group of people subject to the approval of the Executive Council who are to investigate the present control room and warden system and offer a plan of re-organization.

With these two weak spots strengthened, and with the splen-

As a newcomer to Carmel it is only just to myself and to this task that I draw a little picture to show what warrant I possess for handling it.

Sixty-one years of my sixty-three have been spent immersed in music. I began singing when I was two; I sing still. I have heard all the great singers of my time, all the great actors, conductors, pianists, violinists, cellists; I have seen and seen again most of the great paintings and sculptures of the world; I have read and read again most of the great works of the world's literature; I am an indifferent pianist but I have played over and over again most of the great works for the piano; I have acted in Shakespeare and the plays of other men; I have struggled for thirty years to teach singers to be artists; I have composed music and outstanding artists have sung some of it; I have been offered a production of one of my works for the operatic stage by the Grand Opera in Paris. Furthermore I adore youth and I rush with enthusiasm to encourage and foster any artistic talent whenever I find it there.

And so when I arrived in Carmel some seven weeks ago and began to hear of a great artistic find as a singer called Claramae Turner and then of another, a pianist, called Vivian Larsen, I at once fired up with eagerness to hear these two young people.

And then I was told about the Musical Art Club and its most admirable purpose—to give talented musical artists a chance to be heard. And I began to be glad from another angle that I had at last come to Carmel.

And then one day I was being taken through the Del Monte Hotel. When we came to the small lounge I was told that this was where the Musical Art Club gave its concerts. "Here?" I exclaimed, "where people walk back and forth?" And I thought of all the

LAIDLAW WILLIAMS ARTICLE

A suggestion for a way to ease war-time nerve strain with a hobby that will also be a means of cultural enrichment is contained in an article by Laidlaw Williams, president of the Audubon Society, on the feature page of this issue.

The article was written at the request of the Pine Cone, and answers the questions evening strollers on the beach have been asking about the birds that frequent the mouth of the Carmel River.

Sanitary Case Again in Court Next Monday

The Sanitary Board case will be reopened in Judge Jorgensen's Court in Salinas next Monday, Bernard Rowntree informed the board at its meeting Monday night.

The two-year old case, involving a dispute over assessment to pay for the sewage disposal plant was decided in favor of the plaintiffs, a group of Carmel property owners, in its first trial before Judge Jorgensen.

As the Sanitary Board neglected to file for appeal to a higher court during the time limitation, Judge Jorgensen granted their request to reopen the case in his jurisdiction.

Other business of the meeting was the refusal of Mrs. Eleanor W. Yates' request that the city pay a plumbing bill of $2.00. She had called in a plumber to make repairs and then it had been found that the trouble was in the city sewer line and not in the outlet on her property.

Board denied the request.

Carlyle Lewis Honored with Carmel War Dead

Hope, faith in the future, were emphasized when Dr. Frank Topping, American Legion Chaplain, and Major Stevens spoke at the memorial services in Devendorf Plaza on Armistice Day.

Parents of Carlyle Lewis were present at the ceremony honoring their son whose name, with that of Gordon Bain, is carved on the memorial stone placed in the Plaza last spring as a monument to the Carmel men who have lost their lives in World War 2.

Prayers were offered also for Commander John E. Murphy and Robert Monroe of the Navy who have been reported missing in action.

Following introductory talks by Mayor Keith Evans and American

Carmel Women Respond to Emergency Call

About forty Carmel Women this week abandoned all other activities to respond to the appeal of the Monterey canneries to help the bumper catch of sardines.

Caught short of help, the canneries would not have been able to handle the catch if local women, some of them writers, artists, socialites, had not stepped in patriotically to alleviate the situation. Without their help food that will be vitally needed this winter would have spoiled on the wharf.

Active in recruiting the help here were the C.D. office, the

Carmel Woods Chicken Battle Set For Nov. 20

Some of the residents of Carmel Woods want to raise chickens, some do not, and some not only do not want to raise chickens themselves but they do not want their neighbors to either. The latter feel so deeply on the subject that they presented a petition to the Planning Commission of the County of Monterey to put a stop to the poultry raising activities of one of their neighbors.

There is a county zoning ordinance prohibiting commercial undertakings in the district, and since the chicken fancier who had aroused the antagonism of her neighbors was engaged in the selling of eggs as well as using them for home consumption, the commission was on the point of ruling in favor of the objectors when word came from the farm advisory office that victory gardens and chicken raising should be encouraged in every home as part of the war effort and to ameliorate the threatened shortage of vegetables and the high price of eggs.

The planning commission finally decided that THIS IS WAR and if raising chickens would help win it, it was their patriotic duty to do what they could to encourage the activity even to the extent of amending the existing zoning ordinance to make poultry husbandry legal.

But this is the Land of the Free where every citizen is allowed to have his say, so a public hearing will be held at 4:30 on November 20 in the Carmel City Hall at which the out and out chicken objectors (they don't want chickens under any circumstances) and the partial objectors (they don't mind chickens but they object to roosters that crow at 3 a.m.) and the Let's Keep Commercialism Out of Carmel People who don't mind chickens for home consumption but they object to egg selling, can all get together and have a good old fashioned Carmel row and arrive at a compromise that will

Out of Towners Flocking Here to See Amaya Dance

On Sunday afternoon at two forty-five o'clock, the curtain of the Sunset School Auditorium stage will draw on what without doubt will be the most exciting concert attraction ever seen in Carmel. Carmen Amaya and her Company of Gypsy Dancers and Musicians will be there, appearing as the opening event of the Carmel Music Society's Sixteenth Annual Season.

Despite difficulties of transportation, a gratifying number of people from Hollister, Watsonville, Salinas and Santa Cruz will be in the audience. Carmen Amaya is recognized as the world's greatest flamenco dancer. She comes with awesome reputation not only for her dancing, but for her "terrific" personality, which projects to the point where some critics have declared that she was "almost fearful to see." Carmel audiences will have an advantage that metropol-

Student Lunches To Cost More Is Board Decision

The twenty-five cent lunch the high school students have been enjoying in their cafeteria will cost them thirty cents now.

High cost of food and labor have resulted in a $67 deficit in two months of cafeteria operation, Muriel Nevin reported to the school board meeting Wednesday night.

After consideration of her cost analysis, the board decided on a one cent increase charge on five cent dishes, two on ten cent dishes. Whereas, the usual lunch, hot dish, ten cents, salad 5 cents, milk shake ten cents, cost the student twenty-five cents, it will now cost thirty.

A committee from the Ninth Grade Science Class, Orville Meade, Douglas Calley and Kenneth Moore, presented a plan for

Local AWVS in Charge of Bond Sales Week Here

By ROMA STEARNS

The week of November 22-28 will be known throughout the U.S. as "Women's Bond Week." The U. S. government is appealing to all women's civic and social organizations to raise money for bonds, the real ammunition that will win the war.

The U. S. Treasury has asked the American Women's Voluntary Service to represent them as Chairmen and Co-ordinators in this drive on the Peninsula.

Booths for the sale of bonds will be set up in the post-offices, theaters here and in Monterey and in Penny's store in Monterey. A different group of women representatives from the women's organizations will be in charge of these booths each day. Those groups taking charge of the booths here and in Monterey at the time of this writing are:

Carmel postoffice, Carmel Women's Club and American Legion Auxiliary, State Theater, Business and Professional Women (Thanksgiving Day), Carmel Theater, American Legion Auxiliary, Penny's, Young Women's Institute, Eastern Star and Carmel PTA.

Many may ask "Who are the American Women's Voluntary Services organization?" They are a group of hard-working women who, since last April 28th, quietly and often without credit have

Bundles and CD Asked to Collect Silk Stockings

By Mrs. M. V. B. MacAdam
Bundles for America, working in conjunction with the Salvage committee of the Carmel Civilian Defense, has received an urgent request from the Conservation Division of the War Production Board to collect as speedily as possible all silk or nylon and rayon stockings which are needed for the production of Powder Bags and for other War materials.

Silk and Nylon, particularly, are critically needed and the collection of them must be continuous for the duration. "The Bundles, Britain-America United" (the new name adopted since joining forces) appeal to our patriotic community to respond at once and bring in to their headquarters on Dolores street, or to Imelman's, Stella's, Sprouse - Reitz or Graham's, as large a quantity of worn and discarded stockings as can be collected. The only requirement is — please have them washed, and remember, your cooperation will be a direct "home-to-the-fighting-front" gift to relieve great suffering.

This collection of hosiery is for Carmel only and "The Bundles, Britain-America United" will be most grateful for your help.

a concrete pool, ten by twenty feet in size to be built by the Science Class and the custodians, on the school ground to serve as a tank for specimens as well as an attractive addition to the landscaping. They offered a detailed prospectus of cost of building materials and an outline of Mrs. Jane Todd's suggestions for plants to surround the pool.

The board approved the plan and voted $50 to pay cost of materials.

Superintendent Otto Bardarson reported that the surfacing of the out-of-doors corridors was breaking up. It is an oil mixture and had not been hot enough when applied. It was decided to ask the contractors to make repairs. Bardarson also reported on his attendance at the Conference of School Superintendents in Los Angeles and submitted a report of J. W. Getsinger's attendance at the Adult School Administrators convention at San Jose.

Other business transacted at the meeting included the appropriation of $250 for materials for an incinerator and basket ball back-stop, the work to be done by the students and high school custodians and approval of the transfer of the hot water tank from the old shower building to Sunset for additional hot water for the cafeteria.

The board was notified that the Granite Construction would complete the tennis courts next week, that the insurance inspector had approved the condition of the boilers at both Sunset and the high school and that the fire extinguishers ordered at the last meeting had been installed at the high school.

The bid for bleachers for the high school gymnasium was awarded to the American Seating Company, and delivery is expected next month.

Pat Cunningham Back Home After Successful Show

Carmel is glad to have Pat Cunningham back again after her highly successful trip to the Southland where her Art Exhibit is showing at the Stendahl Galleries, taining Pat's portraits, in Hollywood. The Exhibit, conlandscapes, figure drawings and paintings, started November the fifth and will continue until the twenty-first.

And already the good news that she has sold five paintings has reached us. Pat had a wonderful time down there, staying with Mrs. George Murray in Beverly Hills, and going to all the galleries and museums. She says that people there are tremendously interested in Carmel and regard it as the mecca of the art world here on the west coast.

Pat is back with new ideas for an adult class in discussion and analysis of modern art and hopes to bring these classes into actual practice as soon as arrangements can be made.

Violin Club Holds Meeting Wednesday

An interesting session of the Violin Club was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Parish Hall of San Carlos Church.

The president, Everett Messenger, introduced the topic for discussion, "The influence of war on the work of great musicians." Musicians discussed from this standpoint were Beethoven, Paderewski, Fritz Kreisler, Paganini and John Alden Carpenter.

Solos were played by Betty Lou Jones, Barbara J. Maeff, John Gibbs, Vera May Church, Delfo Giglio, Basil Allaire and Evenett Messenger.

The group meets once each month to play informally and to present topics of musical interest. Open meetings are held occasionally in order to share with parents and friends the inspiration of music. The young people are students of Valona Brewer, Carmel violinist.

Boys, Girls Plan Show At Carmel Theatre

Sponsored by the management of the Carmel Theatre, boys and girls of the theatre audience will direct and present their own Saturday matinee stage show tomorrow afternoon.

A committee of four was selected last week by Miss Bonnie Withers, manager, to plan the show and Harry Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. H. Watson, was elected from the committee by a popular vote of the audience to serve as the master of ceremonies. Others on tomorrow's committee are: Jeanette Reel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry W. Reel; Caryl Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hill; and Dick Kelley, son of Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. G. W. Kelley. They have charge of arranging the complete details of the stage show, awarding prizes provided by the theater for contestants in games and planning the 20 minute program of entertainment.

This is to be a regular feature of the Saturday matinee at the Carmel Theater with a new committee and master of ceremonies elected each Saturday to serve for the show of the coming week.

Fireworks and Good Work at C.D. Meeting

At a C.D. Executive Council meeting that started with fireworks and recriminations, genuine constructive work was accomplished Monday night when Mayor Keith Evans appointed three members to submit names to the committee to make up a group that would investigate and make recommendations for the reorganization of the control center and the warden system.

But first the Mayor had his say in a memo he read to the council which excoriated his critics, among them the Pine Cone Cymbal, and complained that their criticism had not been constructive.

Executive Secretary Harriett Rowntree read a list of incidents that the control room had had to handle on the now historic All Units Drill and demanded to know what the committee would have done about them in her place.

She then said that she was resigning on December 1 because her present position involved so many duties that she could not do justice to all of them. She expressed her willingness to give her services in some other department of the Civilian Defense.

The theme of her brief talk was that there was too much burden put on too few and on people who were too busy with other work. To this situation she attributed the weakness of the warden system and recommended that someone be found to take over the duties of chief warden. She also made the recommendation that an investigating committee be appointed to study the control room and warden situation.

Mrs. Helen Wood made the motion that the Mayor appoint the committee to select candidates for an investigating committee.

John Gilbert, chairman of the Salvage Committee, reported that the contributions of metal were coming in steadily, and asked the committee for their recommendation on the disposal of usable articles that were left on the salvage pile.

Some objection had come from citizens because these things had been sold to private individuals by the Civilian Defense. Gilbert explained that the only means of disposal of the salvage material is through junk dealers, and if the C.D. did not themselves sell the usable articles, the junk man would when they came into his possession. Such sales indirectly accomplish the purpose of the scrap drive: why send in a usable frying pan to be melted down and made into a new frying pan when it can be sold here in the first place."

The committee went on record as favoring the sale by the C.D. of usable objects.

Nominating Committee appointed by the Mayor to select candidates for the investigating committee is: Corum Jackson, Ed Ewig and Kathleen Prewett.

New members to the Executive Council: Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Ralph Skene, Bundles for America and Bundles for Britain, Mrs. Ida Newberry, rationing board, John Gilbert, salvage; Mary Jepp, A.W.V.S.; W. H. Haley, Jr., Corum B. Jackson, real estate association, Everett Smith, Otto Bardarson, schools.

Bundles Needs Clothes For Battle Victims

By EDITH D. SKENE
Chairman, Bundles for Britain
"We have now joined our two organizations of Bundles for Britain and Bundles for America and are working together on Dolores and 7th Street.

Contrary to many reports, the Bundles for Britain are still able to send clothing overseas, and what is more, with the reduced submarine menace, thanks to our Navy, our boxes are arriving and helping to clothe the sufferers from the continued German bombings in England.

Lately an English town had its entire shopping district and all its merchandise destroyed. Within three weeks 14,000 people had been clothed by our organizations.

Coming nearer home, we send to Pacific coast shipping centers men's war clothing for torpedoed and shipwrecked British seamen, thus helping to relieve local charitable organizations.

A Carmel visitor who is one of the workers in such an organization told friends that some of the seamen arrived clothed only in towels. Imagine their suffering in the icy winds of the North Pacific!

Is it not truly worth while helping these men whose ships carry arms, munitions and food to our American soldiers overseas?

So if you can spare any warm clothing for men, women and children, do let us give you a share in this wonderful work.

We stand with open arms in our door in the Thrift Shop on Dolores, ready to receive and expedite all such gifts.

In anticipation of your continued and generous support we are deeply grateful.

Daniels Joins Up To Help Navy Teach Sailors to Swim

C. M. Daniels of Pebble Beach, world famous swimmer, has volunteered his services to the Navy and leaves today for San Francisco where he will train sailors to swim and dive.

Daniels, who at one time held all the world's swimming records for races up to 300 metres, participated in three Olympic games—in St. Louis, Athens and London, and won four Olympic titles. He won all the American records.

The stroke which is popularly called the Australian crawl might more properly be named the American crawl since it was developed to the form in which we know it by Daniels.

Monday afternoon Daniels gathered together a group of 40 of his Peninsula friends for cocktails at the Cypress Point Club.—E.P.

McINDOE IN HOSPITAL

Fred McIndoe underwent a major operation at the Peninsula Community Hospital this week and at last report is progressing toward recovery.

C. W. Lee, Carmel Benefactor, Mourned

Clarence W. Lee, who died Saturday in Los Angeles, will be mourned by many people in Carmel. The Carmel ambulance was his idea. He managed the campaign which put it over. He staged the campaign likewise which made the Peninsula Community Hospital possible.

Lee, a veteran newspaper manager, served as chairman of the Carmel Chapter, American Red Cross, from 1937 through 1939 and it was his able administration which established the efficient organization which it enjoys today.

C. D. Lee, first general manager of the United Press, was the brother of C. W. Lee, and the famous far eastern war correspondent, Clark Lee, is his nephew.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lee celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Feb. 6, 1939, with a memorable reception at Hotel La Ribera.

Surviving Lee are Mrs. Lee, their daughter, Mrs. Sarah Lee Koepp, formerly of Carmel, and their sons, Rowland V. Lee, movie director, Robert Lee and Donald Lee.

Want a Big Job? Sculp a Horse Says Kiska Beeck

Kisa Beeck, vivacious young sculptress from Berkeley, will leave Carmel tomorrow and bid goodbye to her guests of the week, Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Martinez and Harriet Dean. She will return home for the unveiling Sunday in Woodminister Park, Oakland, of her heroic size stone equestrian of Joaquin Miller.

The statue is a gift of Miller's daughter, Juanita, to the city of Oakland and Mrs. Beeck made it in a struggle against time and priorities.

To find the kind of horse Joaquin Miller rode necessitated a search over hill and dale through pastures and stables from Berkeley to Walnut Creek.

Mrs. Beeck is small, deeply tanned, with tawny curls and dark gray-blue eyes, and she describes her adventures with small, beautifully shaped hands.

"It must be a strong horse to be made in stone. It could not be a thoroughbred and yet it had to be a very nice horse for Joaquin Miller."

Well, she found such a horse after twenty miles of looking. But then, where to model it? In the defense work area there are neither studios nor houses with large rooms to be had, and the statue was to be twice the height of Mrs. Beeck.

The quarters she secured, on Berkeley's windy Bay Shore highway, consisted of an old shed which shared a driveway traveled by large trucks which Mrs. Beeck had to duck as she modeled. She also had to wrestle with the problem of finding someone who could help her build the armature. The only carpenter she could discover turned out to be a taxidermist who assured her he could build her a horse, hair and all. Her difficulties went on and on, including the obtaining of unobtainable excelsior for plaster, but finally Mrs. Beeck completed Joaquin Miller in his big hat and on his dily trained and equipped services that the town already has, the result can be community protection of a high order.

Chicken War—

Like the Snack, they're noisy and they smell.

Unless rigidly regulated, chicken raising in a residential district can become a community calamity. The roosters wake up hard-working citizens at three o'clock in the morning. The hens escape and go prospecting in somebody's flower bed. The odor that arises from a neglected chicken run is beyond the power of all the perfumes of Arabia to ameliorate. A clap-trap of chicken houses and wire mesh can turn a respectable neighborhood into a Hooverville, and the enmity chickens can create between neighbors makes the way we feel about Hirohito almost charitable.

Yet eggs are mighty good eating, and with one thing and another sawing on our nerves, we certainly need our calcium.

So if roosters are disqualified, if building restrictions are placed on the chicken houses and runs so they are kept decently in the background, if sanitary inspection is made regularly, and if shotguns, rifles and other lethal weapons are taken away from the non-chicken raising citizens, maybe it would be all right to amend the zoning ordinance—maybe—but it's a dangerous undertaking.

Nurses Aide—

Mrs. Mora Brooks, chairman of the Nurses Aide, has issued an urgent appeal for women to sign up for the new course that starts the first of the month.

Candidates from the three Peninsula cities should register at the Carmel Red Cross Chapter house where classes for the first 35 hours of the course will be held. These will be followed by 45 hours training at the Peninsula Community Hospital.

The drive now in progress for the enlistment of Registered nurses into service with the armed forces is likely to put a drain on the community that can be met adequately only if women will train themselves to nurses aide work which prepares them to perform some of the nursing duties that do not require more technical training so they can relieve the registered nurses that are left in the community to do the work only they can perform.

It is not only war work. It is community service of the finest kind.

Garbage Trucks Taken By City

The city of Carmel by the Sea will shortly become the sole owner of three garbage trucks, a Chevrolet, a Ford 8, an International and $300.

A resolution was passed at the meeting of the council Monday night to release the Carmel Garbage Corporation from its contract in exchange for the trucks. The $300 is from John Roscelli, as payment for the privilege of collecting the garbage for the past two months under the franchise he is taking over from the Carmel Garbage Corporation.

Meanwhile, people keep phoning the police department to know how they can get in touch with the garbage collecting agency. Chief Roy Fraties says that they should leave a note in the scavenger mail box on the pole at Joe's Taxi lot, or phone Roscelli in Monterey. He's listed in the book.

The council heard Corum Jackson present the proposal of the Peninsula Community Hospital to take all emergency cases at no overhead charge to the County other than the case-by-case fee that is in effect at present if all emergency cases are brought to the Community Hospital.

The Council went on record as approving the plan if it is favorably received by the city councils of Pacific Grove and Monterey.

The hitch hike and curfew ordinance had first reading. Shortly it will be illegal for the high school students to go out into the streets to thumb rides up the hill, but they can thumb to their hearts' content as long as they remain on the sidewalk until they get a lift. The curfew ordinance provides that no one under 18 may be out of doors within the city limits after ten o'clock at night without chaperone.

The council is to meet again next Tuesday to wind up legal details on the garbage contract.

Some of the A.W.V.S. recruits were Charis Weston, Charlotte Kett, Olga Wellman, Julie Parks, Jean Hyde, Katherine Rodgers, Sue Smith and Mary Jepp.

Among those who responded to the phone calls from the C.D. office are: Mrs. L. F. Bosshardt, Mrs. Frank Bell, Mrs. Rademaker, Mrs. Grant Stevenson, Mrs. Frank Grove, Rhoda Stafford, Mrs. Louise Hasty, Mary Ann Crowe, Louise Hand, Mrs. Bert Freedman, Mary Mueley, Virginia Wheeler, Nancy Spencer, Mary Haley, Mrs. Frank Andrews, and a group of six from Carmel Valley, a party of four from Carmel Woods, and a group taken in the Alex Merrivale car.

There is still need of help. There is no difficulty with the union regulations as the cannery is paying union scale and the union allows employment of non-union people for an eight day period.

Women who want to assist in this emergency should get in touch with the A.W.V.S. or the Civilian Defense Office.

Latin American Talk Given at Church Group Meet

Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary in the Church of the Wayfarer an interesting talk was given by Miss Leila Gulmurt of the Carmel High School staff. Her subject was South America, a subject on which she is well qualified to speak, since her home is in Lima, Peru. She loves and admires her native land and feels that North Americans should know more about their neighbors to the South. When she came to the United States to attend school she was often asked if the population of South America was mostly Indian, and how queer it must seem to see our modern homes and great cities.

South American cities lose little by contrast with ours in the north, and there are luxurious homes of the wealthy as well as the plain homes of the poorer classes. Miss Gulmurt said that South America was a land of great contrasts in various ways. It has great mountain ranges and vast plains as we have in this continent. Also a great variety in climate and in people. There was transportation by ox-cart and mule as well as the most modern means of travel by railroads, by automobile and by aircraft.

She spoke particularly of the great difference in the manner of life in South American countries. She pointed out that North Americans lay more emphasis on success in terms of material prosperity than their neighbors to the South who are for the most part more leisurely in the tempo of life even in their business transactions. There is little or none of the ceaseless activity which so characterizes our big city life. South American visitors are made to feel that time is money here and that this difference in the way of doing business is one of the chief sources of misunderstanding and ill-will between the two Americas.

Red Cross Bulletins

Between two fateful dates in American history—anniversaries of Peace and War—nurses of the nation are being challenged by a call to duty.

Two thousand nurses from California to serve their country through the Red Cross First Reserve are urgently—desperately—needed between Armistice Day, November 11, and Pearl Harbor Day, December 7.

Miss Eleanor Bates, chairman of the Monterey County Nursing Council for War Service, in a challenging appeal to nurses, said today that these 2,000 nurses "must be enrolled within this period."

"As great as civilian needs are in these times," Miss Bates said, "the health and welfare of our fighting men are far more important to us all. Nurses must enroll. The job to be done is one which only they can do. Soldiers of mercy must accompany our soldiers of war around the world."

"The nursing profession and the Red Cross Nursing Service are obliged to ask full cooperation and real sacrifice of the people in Carmel."

"Before December 7 Santa Cruz-Monterey Area must enroll a quota of 47 nurses in the Red Cross First Reserve. Our Army and our Navy have set this figure."

"There are enough nurses to meet their needs," Miss Bates continued, "and to care for the essential needs of this Area. Inactive registered nurses will have to take the places of younger general duty nurses. The private duty nurse, of course, will soon be a thing of the past, except for the really critically ill patient."

Nurse applicants for enrollment in the Red Cross First Reserve must be between 21 and 40 years of age, single and in good health.

"Meeting the Santa Cruz-Monterey Area quota is a cooperative effort between the Nursing Council, the Red Cross Nursing Service, the employer and the public," Miss Shirley Titus, executive secretary of the California Nursing Council for War Service, declared in a message to Miss Bates.

A similar message from Miss Gladys Badger, Pacific Area National Red Cross Nursing Service director, to the people of this area said: "Adjustments must be made on the home front—not on the battle front! The nursing profession has always met demands upon it in periods of crisis unselfishly and with honor. I'm sure they will do so now."

"Eligible nurses—single and under 40—who should join the Red Cross First Reserve include: those doing private duty, those on hospital general duty, in non-nursing professions, office nurses, head nurses not essential for teaching or supervision and public health nurses not essential to maintain minimum civilian health in any given community."

"Between March 1 and September 1 only 397 nurses were enrolled in this state. This poor record should sting the pride of every registered nurse in California. Something must be done—something is going to be done—NOW," Miss Badger said.

"It has been estimated that the Armed Forces will need 75 per cent of our single nurses under 40 if our soldiers, sailors and marines are to be given proper care. The Red Cross enrolls—the Army and Navy assign nurses to duty."

The First Reserve of the Red Cross Nursing Service is the official reservoir of nurses from which

When Present Stocks of New Cars Are Sold,
THERE WON'T BE ANY MORE! If You're Going to Need a New Car for Essential Work—BETTER APPLY FOR ONE NOW.

RIGHT now, Buick dealers can offer you selection from complete stocks of unused 1942 Buicks built before automobile production halted.

But every week that goes by increases the number of cars now in use that simply must be replaced in the very near future.

These cars can be replaced only from existing stocks. If you regularly drive a car in really essential service, don't take a chance on finding present stocks exhausted by trying to get the very last mile out of it.

Turn it in, for use by some other essential user who doesn't drive as much as you do.

New-car buying regulations are aimed at conserving both new cars and cars now in use. They also seek to put new cars in the hands of those who need them most.

Thus if you can show real need—now, while cars are available—you can get a permit to buy now, while cars can be bought.

Permits to buy won't do any good when there

If you really NEED a new car—

Better Buy Buick

are no cars to be had!

Your Buick dealer will be glad to give you all information on new-car buying regulations and procedure. At the moment, he can make immediate delivery to qualified buyers on almost any 1942 Buick model.

But because Buick factories have been all-out on war production for many months, your dealer won't be able to help you when cars now available are sold.

Better see him NOW about applying for that car you're going to need.

IF YOU ARE INCLUDED IN THIS LIST YOU'RE ELIGIBLE

There are seven major classifications for persons eligible to buy new cars under basic rationing rules.

These include: (1) persons engaged in the production of war materials or the prosecution of the war, directly or indirectly; (2) physicians, nurses, clergymen, veterinarians; (3) car-owners engaged in public service, such as fire departments, public health, highway maintenance, etc.; (4) owners of taxicabs and other means of transportation; (5) farmers; (6) newspaper wholesalers; and (7) traveling salesmen in certain fields.

Your Buick dealer will be very glad to help you determine whether you come under the rules of eligibility. He will also be glad to help you fill out the proper applications.

Don't guess about your eligibility—see your Buick dealer now and make sure.

FEATURES

OF MEN AND BEASTS

By PHIL NESBITT

Often, during my spare hours spent in Carmel, I meet faces reminiscent of other times and other days long gone by. I recall 'way back in 1924 when Edward Kuster was putting on good plays at the just-built Golden Bough Theater . . . it's not as clear as I'd like it to be, as a picture, but I will ever remember the excited and congenial Edward rushing madly about, in the act of making possible his plays. I'm a bit mixed up on dates—but do you recall Steve Glassel? and Rem Remson? and Robert Stanton's little second story architectural office on the corner where now stands Merle's Treasure Chest? In 1926 I happened to go to Paris . . . away from Carmel. Then Tahiti and Chicago—New York and other less amusing places than this, our own green and wooded countryside. Always word would reach me, in mildly strange and curious fashion, of the dramatic demises etc. of the villagers. The Burtons were here then, with their daughter Christine and Anchen Von Kolb—and the Ralph Fletcher Seymours. A whole pair of decades has raced by . . . still, you know the village of Carmel is filled with many a survivor of those early or rather middle years. Daisy Bostick once wrote a best selling book on Carmel . . . don't know whether it's still in print or not. Then of course there are scads of families still here from those days . . . even as far back as 1901. The astonishing thing about Carmel was its sudden appearance as a 'place to live.' One moment, 30 years ago, the quail, the racoon and the wildcats ruled; then the beauty loving artists and others came in and the racoons moved over a couple of blocks. The countryside about and including Carmel has a rare quality of enchantment for some persons; others fly from the beauty in genuine terror . . . and usually end up as misanthropes or dipsomaniacs.

The Chinese people, whom I greatly admire are no exception to all people in their appreciation and sometimes abuse of alcohol. I ran across a book the other day containing some pertinent reactions to the subject in general. For your doubtless interested edification, here they are: "At the first glass, the man drinks the wine; at the second glass the wine drinks the wine; at the third glass the wine drinks the man."

"The best cure for drunkenness is to look at a drunken man." For a person suffering from fits, the following remedy is offered by the Chinese: "To cure a person lying in a fit, take a large head of garlic and a quantity of warm yellow dust from the road. Pound and mix together until soft, add fresh water and strain. The sufferer MUST be induced to swallow the draught, his teeth being forced open if necessary." A formidable race, the Chinese. Here is one more obviously vitally necessary remedy, under the title of 'How to prevent the soul from going to the wrong place during sleep.' Do as follows, after reading the description. "When a person is asleep his spiritual soul removes to his liver, the seat of his animal soul. If the liver happens to be weakened by noxious influences (a night at the bar), the wandering soul does not return to its proper place. In such cases, the following remedy is efficacious:

Ginseng, one mace

Dragon Brain (i.e. camphor) two mace

Red China root, one mace

Boil together and strain; add fine cinnabar, one mace. Give one dose nightly in warm water at bed time. The soul will promptly return and the patient will recover after three doses."

POETRY

PINE TREE

*The pine tree spreads upon the gray
Masses of cloud and gray-massed air
Her glinting-black, green-somber hair.*

*Among the leafless trees that stand
Unwavering—trees turned to stone—
She murmurs, as the sea might moan.*

*Whether from winds or winter-hawks
She learned the trick, through ashen light
She points her feathers, blurred for flight.*
—EVA TRIEM.

ALASKA HIGHWAY

*Primeval trees before the panting tractor
Fell suddenly towards him!
He threw on his brakes,
Descended and ran forward
To greet his brother from the opposite direction.
Here was a historic moment!
The great road now swings
Straight from the stern Alaskan snows
Through golden California.*

*But not here alone are they building . . .
In Libya, Russia and the islanded Pacific
They strike from all directions,
Clearing a highway for peace—
Paving a road for human brotherhood
To unite and encircle the world*
—DANIEL HAWTHORNE.

I CRUCIFIED MY BROTHER

*I crucified my brother
On a cross of wood.
The nailed grain understood.
The tree could feel his grief.
The tree put forth a leaf,
flower and leaf and root,
and bore compassionate fruit.*

*I crucified my brother
on a cross of steel.
The metal could not feel.
Flower nor leaf nor root foretold the pitiless fruit that ripened and rained down onto the open town.*

REVIEWS

BIRD STUDY WARTIME HOBBY

By LAIDLAW WILLIAMS

I know a Lieutenant Commander, formerly an enthusiastic visitor to Carmel, now a Naval surgeon stationed somewhere in the southwest Pacific, who writes home of the joy and relaxation he derives from studying birds during his rare moments of diversion from his harrowing duties in the zone of combat. Another friend, disabled in the first world war, told me that the long period of convalescence was made endurable because he could pursue his favorite hobby, bird study, from a wheel chair in Florida. There was a non-commissioned officer at the Presidio of Monterey last summer who was refreshed and stimulated by Monterey County birding trips on which I was glad to act as guide. He was especially pleased to watch and record various interesting species seen at the Carmel River mouth, many of which were new to this soldier-ornithologist who came from the Middle West.

So if you, either soldier or civilian, are harassed and worried by war tension (and who is not?), my advice is to take up bird study as a soothing and relaxing tonic. We on the Monterey Peninsula live in the midst of one of the best regions for birds on the Pacific Coast. One of the most profitable places in which to begin your study just now is the river mouth. Fishermen have been forced to quit there recently because the season has closed, but birds haven't left and there is no closed season on casting about with the field glass instead of the fly! In fact there are as many birds as I have ever seen there right now. The marshy meadow adjacent to the lagoon is teeming with pintails, or sprig duck, that most graceful of waterfowl. Cinnamon teal, the male all rusty red with pale blue wing patches, dabble in the muddy water, as does the shoveller, or spoon-bill, whose beak is so large as to seem grotesque. Protected as they are by the Monterey Peninsula Game Refuge, ducks and even geese may be seen without the aid of blinds or rubber boats. They come right up to Carmelo Road to feed, submerging head and neck while their tails stick up in the air, oblivious of onlookers. Only vigorous actions from a passer-by seems to disturb them.

The lovely little green-winged teal is there also. The male has a brown head with a glossy green stripe on it and an iridescent patch of somewhat the same color on the extended wing. There was even a thrilling flock of geese passing over the other day and one of them remained on the marsh. It was one of the smaller subspecies of Canada goose, or honker, all of which have a white chin patch.

Among the grasses close to the creek one may find the Wilson's snipe probing deeply into the mud with his very long bill. But you must look closely because the brown and black and gray stripes of his plumage camouflage him perfectly and render him almost impossible to distinguish from his dead grass environment. If you sit by the roadside near the tules you may hear a variety of strange grating sounds mixed with high clear notes. It is hard to find what bird is responsible. However, if you are patient and very careful not to make any disturbing movements you may, before long, see a dark form delicately threading its way through the stems of the tules. Twitching its tail nervously it walks with long thin toes extended on the mud, or swims slowly about, if there is water. If it is gray and tawny with a pointed dark red bill it is the Virginia rail. If the bill is bright yellow it is the sora, another member of the rail family. Tules and rushes are their home and they seldom venture far from the protection offered by the thick growth of tall green stems.

The water comes and goes over the meadow

SUNSET SCHOOL NEWS

In room 4 this quarter the report cards were changed. Instead of the regular S, P, and check, we had comments from the teachers, so as to give us more of an idea of our work. This was only experimental. I think it is a very good plan. Do you?—Betty Dougherty, 7th Grade.

Mrs. Uzzell's Sixth Grade is studying about Egypt in Social Studies. It seems more real and interesting with the war going on over there. Egypt is a very interesting subject and I am learning many things about it.—Jeanne Lamberth, 6th Grade.

MARINE DAY

Tuesday, the 10th of November, we celebrated the founding of the Marine Corps. The Marine Corps is two years older than our nation. The Marines were founded in 1774 and we became a nation in 1776. This year the Marines celebrated the day fighting the Japs.—Louise Harber, 6th Grade.

Our first rainy day session was held on Tuesday, November the third. School started the same time as usual but for the noon period we just had half an hour. The children in the lower grades got out at two o'clock, and the upper grades were dismissed at three.—Shirley Petty, 7th Grade.

Experience at Institute

Last Saturday, Institute was held at Sunset School. Teachers from neighboring schools came to see what work the children were doing.

In Mrs. Jordan's room a demonstration in arithmetic was given. Eleven students were selected to form the class. The room was tense. Two people walked in. We were relieved, thinking they would be the only ones. But then some more steps were heard outside. Soon they all came in. Several students could be heard swallowing very hard. From that time on we were really scared, as the number of teachers who came filled our entire room.—Dick Cox, 7th Grade.

After the arithmetic demonstration on Saturday, I heard a visiting teacher tell her friends she had never enjoyed anything so much. She said she was a seventh grade teacher. She also said she would tell her class about the defense stamp graph. Another lady who taught in the same school, I suppose said that she would see that the other lady made no mistakes.—Jacqueline Hillis, 7th Grade.

I met my fourth grade teacher while helping at the Teacher's Institute. Her name is Mrs. Smith and she lives in Pacific Grove. I was arranging flowers when she came to ask me the name of the flowers on the shelf. I told her, then I recognized her. We talked awhile and then she had to leave.—Mary Eleanor Horne, 5th Grade.

On Saturday morning we sang four songs for the teachers. After the singing I had to go down to the lunchroom because I was going to be in a flower arrangement demonstration. I was making a vegetable arrangement. When I got down I found that my lettuce was all wilted. Another girl and I went all over town trying to find another head of the right kind. It couldn't be found; so I used the wilted one. It didn't look so bad, but it didn't look very

Sunset School is now having a Junior Red Cross drive. Each child is asked to bring a penny or more and they will receive a Junior Red Cross button. Everybody who has not brought money is urged to do so. It is for a very good cause.—Mary Lou Cress, 7th Grade.

Today is the day! All of Mr. Doerr's class must hand in a notebook on one European country, as a unit of study for our Social Studies. Everyone in the room chose one country of Europe and gave an oral report on it. We enjoyed several very good reports.—Du Val Roberts, 7th Grade.

Gas rationing is coming into effect in a few days. It will effect business in many ways. Only the people who need transportation will get gas. In a few months the streets will look funny because of the rationing. There will be more bicycles, too.—Bob Johnson, 7th Grade.

New Boys in Our Class

There are three new boys in our class. David McPherson came from Texas. Bob Eggleston came from Santa Monica. Duncan Maitland came from Ohio. We are glad to have them. They like our school.—Cherryl Reese, 2nd Grade.

School on Saturday

It seems funny to come to school on Saturday but that's what we did last Saturday. We came to spell for teachers from other towns. All of us thought it was fun to come. There were more teachers in the schoolroom than children. That was funny, too.—Janet Gorman, 2nd Grade.

We elected new class officers. Class officers are the pupils we elect to lead our class. The new president is Dick Kelly; vice president, Carol Petty; secretary, Barbara Horne. The Room Monitors are Luis Wolters and Diana Lewis. Best Citizens are Luis Wolters and Diana Lewis. These people will hold office until the next report card period which will be about six weeks.—Barbara Horne, 4th Grade.

Thoughts on Armistice Day

When the last war ended the Armistice was signed. Maybe when this war is over we will have another Armistice Day. We hope that we won't have another war after this one.—Leslie Doolittle, 2nd Grade.

We hope this war will end safely with us winning it. We don't want any more wars and we want the next Armistice to be the last one.—Penny Bestor, 2nd Grade.

grasses which are green in spring and tawny now. Parts of the meadow where the salt grass grows will become a burnished red in winter. The stands of tules make dark patches here and there and the willows up-river will soon turn a delicate pink. Even if you aren't a bird lover the marsh is worth seeing.

Ducks, geese, snipe and rails will always come to these places if they aren't diked and drained or made into dumps. And bird lovers will come from distances to see the birds they harbor. Many San Francisco birders make the Carmel River mouth a main stop in weekend pilgrimages down the coast (or did before the scarcity of rubber!)

Members of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society are fortunate that they live near at hand and have availed themselves of the opportunity for field trips there. On Saturday, November 14, for their second meeting of the present season the society will hear Bert Harwell, of the National Audubon Society, who will give an informal talk and exhibit some new colored motion pictures taken on the seacoast, desert, and mountains during his field work this summer. All interested, non-members as well as members, are invited to attend the meeting which will be held at 2 o'clock at the Pacific Grove Museum.

FOOTBALL RE-CAP.

Despite war conditions, departures of coaches, injuries and other problems, the Carmel-Padre Locomotives roared on to a successful football season.

Even though games were cancelled, substitute games were played.

On September 26, the first game of the season was played. The Padres romped to a 7-2 victory over the Monterey heavyweights.

Next in order was another game with Monterey, the Padres lost this one.

Then came a lightweight game with Pacific Grove reserves which Carmel won 12-0.

Back again on the home field the Padres once more tackled the P. G. Breakers, and defeated them by a grand score of 19-7.

Even the tire situation couldn't stop the team from travelling to Gonzales where they met the fighting Spartans only to lose by a score of 20 to 0.

The football schedule next called for a game with Menlo, but by request of that team, the game was cancelled.

The Padres went into their substitute game with the absence of a coach, but under the able supervision of Donald Craig. The Red and Gray came out with a 6-0 victory.

No game was scheduled until the Armistice Day Pageant with Monterey. That game, however, was cancelled by the request of Monterey.

The last game of the season was played with Gonzales on the Red and Gray field on Saturday, November 7. The Padres played a hard game, but could not seem to stop the tough Gonzales team.

Even though the Padres had a mixed up season, it didn't dent their fighting spirit or the morale of the student body.—Ann Casati and Helen Passadori.

Most women resist the temptation of acquiring something new about as easily as the small boy avoids helping himself to the cookie-jar. And when milady has such fascinating things to tempt her as those all-wool suits I saw the other day in the Cinderella Shop, she may as well give in. Helen Dean's suits are soft, tailored wool dress and sport types, and some even have top-coats to match. You know how hard it is to find these nowadays, and if you DO find them, usually you can't afford them. When you have the yen for your new suit, you can't afford to pass by the Cinderella Shop, because the prices are just right for YOUR budget.

And you lovers of nice large knitting bags will be thrilled with Jean Ritchie's selection of imported fabric and fine leather bags. The patterns are varied, the colors beautiful and the styles just right for whatever amount of knitting you wish to put in them. leisurely way that business is done there and are often loud in criticism.

Another source of friction is our attitude of superiority toward our southern neighbors. We have a tendency to feel that we should civilize them while they feel the same way toward us. If we had a better understanding of each other we would realize that we have much to learn from each other. Among neighbors there should be a willingness to benefit by a difference in view-point.

Miss Gulmert spoke highly of Secretary Hull's Good Neighbor policy, which, without doubt, has improved the relations between the two countries. The desire for continental solidarity in the Americas is stronger than ever it was in the history of the New World. There is much to be done yet in removing prejudices and misunderstandings. As individuals we could do a great deal to help by reading authentic books giving the truth about our neighbors. One of the books she recommended for careful study was John Gunther's Inside Latin America.

Legion Commander E. H. Ewig, Dr. Topping gave his address, W. A. Burke lowered the flag, Major Stevens offered a prayer and a guard of honor in charge of Lieutenant Robinson from Fort Ord fired a salute.

In his address Dr. Topping said: "On this occasion, the Twenty-Fourth anniversary of the Armistice, which brought to a close the terrible devastation caused by such a prolonged world war memories are indelibly impressed on heart and mind of those of you who gave, for God and Country, the life-blood of your very own: some to remain forever under the blood soaked soil of France and Belgium: while those, more fortunate, returned only to offer again service to our Government in this hour of Mar's tragedy. Their sons and daughters, their brothers and sisters have united to uphold the Torch of Justice and to defend again the rights of liberty and freedom as expressed by the Stars and Stripes in the flag of our Country.

"We humbly offer a prayer to our Almighty God to bless those hero lads, Gordon Bain and Carlyle Lewis, and, mayhap Commander John E. Murphy and Robert H. Monroe of the United States Navy, reported these many months as missing in action, they who so cheerfully gave their lives, almost at the inception of this terrible world conflict. We beseech Thee to keep fresh and enduring, in loving memory, their sacrifices. And, O, God of Mercy, we pray Thee to grant such comfort as lies only within Thy omnipotent power to fathers and mothers and others left in sorrowful mourning.

"And to you, citizens of Carmel, who remember this anniversary and who thus honor these lads by your presence, and grief, in this beautiful spot they loved so well, there is left that most sacred treasure of an enduring memory, and the unfading hope, radiant as the morning sun:

"That nothing walks with aimless feet,

That not one life shall be destroyed

Or cast as rubbish to the void, When God hath made the pile complete."

CARMEL CHAPTER MOURNS PASSING OF C. W. LEE

Members of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross were grieved to learn this week of the death at Good Samaritan Hospital in Hollywood of Mr. Clarence W. Lee. Mr. Lee was Chairman of Carmel Chapter of the Red Cross for the three years 1937-38-39, and organized the present plan for the annual Roll Call here. The Carmel Red Cross Ambulance was also his brain child, and it was he who made the arrangements for the securing of it. Further details of Mrs. Lee's life will be found in another column in this paper.

De Bruce Doubtful of The Musical Arts Club

supreme artists it has been my great privilege to be closely associated with and of what they would say — and do — if any one asked them to perform in a public corridor! And I began to be somewhat doubtful of the Musical Art Club.

And then I was taken to hear the second half of the program of the concert at which the club presented Claramae Turner. Looking over the program to see what she had sung and what she was to sing, I saw that she had opened it with a song about death, that she was about to sing another about death and that she was to close it with still another, one that turned out to be one endless constant calling for death to come. This person, I said to myself, may have a perfectly beautiful voice — and she has most certainly — but she has no sense of the fitness of things, no idea of program-making, none of the sense of proportion without which there is no artist. And of course when she sang, it was with a lovely voice easily and skillfully used for the most part, but there was no artistry in the project of the composer's creation. It was great and outstanding beauty as a vocalist but complete mediocrity as a singer.

Now I do not hold with encouraging mediocrity. I consider it a mistake in this country of mine where there is such a vast amount of it in the field of music where real artistry is concerned to encourage it. And so I quite frankly say that I began to wonder really how much the members of the committee who chose the talent to be encouraged know what should be encouraged. It seemed to me that if we were there to encourage Claramae Turner that some one should be called upon then and there to tell Claramae where she fell down and in what way she would have to pick herself up if she is ever to reach the heights of achievement possible with such vocal gifts as she has. But of course that did not happen. And when I faintly indicated that I was not in the least satisfied with her as an artist, I was severely hushed up.

And so, when Vivian Larsen was announced for the second concert, I wondered whether I would find her the brilliant prodigy every one said she was. I also wondered who Ervin Mautner might be. But no one said anything about him. And so you can imagine what I felt at finding that Ervin Mautner was an artist — of outstanding attainments and promise — and that Vivian Larsen was not. Mautner comes to his composers with sensitive vision, exquisitely authentic violin tone, a delicious feeling for the phrase. He is by nature and training equipped to create with increasing mastery the 'participation mystique,' as the French term it, which permits the audience to be invaded, to be saturated, with the orgasm of creation to which the composer rose in touching those ineffable realms where the created lies awaiting birth in sound and line and color.

I esteem a public performance by any one, in which this participation in the experiences of the composer in creating the work performed is not in some degree created by the performer an intolerable bore. And so you will know how I felt about Vivian Larsen's work at the piano. How could any one with imagination, playfulness, tenderness, ardor, expose him or herself as often as Miss Larsen had to expose herself to Schumann's kaleidoscopically enchanting 'CARNEVAL' to be able to play it at all and never register any of it in her playing of it? By what standards do the people in Carmel consider her a prodigy or brilliant? What is there at the present time to encourage? It was utterly commonplace playing because her vision of life is a commonplace vision and it will continue to be commonplace and boring until Miss Larsen wakes in her inner vision and begins to investigate the inside of things. In Frank Wickman's hands she can become a superb player of the piano as a mechanism. And if that is all you want to hear when the piano is played, that is all right — if not, not! I do not go if I know it to sit on uncomfortable chairs in a noisy corridor to be bored. I will endure such distractions for an Ervin Mautner — of whom no one speaks in the terms he so richly deserves except Hal Garrott — and I will encourage him and help him all I can to get where he should get, because he has the real thing. Certain things he needs and particularly to develop a certain 'bite' in the tonal attack which releases any individual tone like a bullet of gold which bursts into radiance the moment it touches the ear-drum. He could learn this from Szigeti. And some one or some group ought to make it possible for him to go and work for a while with some one like Szigeti. That would be doing something for artistry of real importance. I hope it is something within the scope of the Musical Art Club.

As the result of my two experiences with the activities of the Musical Art Club, I have these suggestions to make to the committee: Have your concert where there are no passing distractions to upset the performers and disturb the audience, where there is a feeling of consecration to the thing in hand; work out some criterion of what really constitutes promising talent in real artistry; and make the programs short enough to leave time for your members and guests to have an open forum to discuss before the performers their merits and lack of them. I should have liked to say all I have essayed here in open meeting then and there on the spot. And if I had I would have said the following: Members and guests of the Musical Art Club, we have now torn Miss Larsen limb from limb and praised Mr. Mautner to the skies. I propose that the Musical Art Club invite Miss Larsen and Mr. Mautner to repeat this program for us in about three months. And if Miss Larsen has waked up and really looked at the 'Carneval' we will take her to our hearts and if she hasn't, then we must find a Siegfried for her and see what that will do. And if Mr. Mautner has bitten off his 'bite' and plays those trenchant and emphatic moments in the Franck Sonata with that supreme touch which they must have before the composition comes truly to life, we shall see to it that he goes places.

Hansen Lends Marine to USO

Carmel USO library became richer last Saturday by a very fine marine by Armin Hansen. It hangs over the newly upholstered Chesterfield, a windjammer "Making Her Easting" gallantly through the swells of an emphatically blue sea, tempting one to sink deep into one of the over-stuffed chairs and go dream-voyaging.

It is a large picture, and its blues blend beautifully with the blue furniture. For six months it will be the focal point of the decoration scheme of the room. Then the Art Association will replace it with another picture lent by one of its members.

Masses Sunday at 8 and 11 o'clock.

ALL SAINTS

Next Sunday at 8 a.m. the service of the Holy Communion. At 9:30 a.m. the Church School and at 11 a.m. the service of Morning Prayer with sermon message by the Rector, the Rev. C. J. Hulsewe. The offertory selection is a duet by Ralph Bennett "God Is a Spirit" to be sung by Mrs. Dorothy Mulkey and Arch W. Leonard. The full Vested Choir will participate in this service. Organ numbers will include Mendelssohn's "If With All Your Hearts" and "To God on High." Visitors to Carmel are sincerely invited to come and worship in this "House of Prayer for All People."

SUNDAY, NOV. 15, 1942

"The Warrior, the Woman, and the Christ" will be Dr. Crowther's sermon theme on Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. The way of the warrior is forever in conflict with the way of the woman and the way of the Christ. If we are to be "realistic" about future world-peace, the warrior-virtues must be directed into constructive channels; the woman-instincts must have wider scope in world affairs, and the Christ-spirit must become more dominant in human life everywhere. Miss Elinor Smith as guest organist will play the following selections, "Prelude," Hesse; "Pilgrim Song," Mendelssohn; "Adagio," Spohr; "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," Bach; "Gloria," Mozart. The service is at eleven; visitors are cordially invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"The earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God." These words from Romans comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, November 15, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Mortals and Immortals."

Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." (Romans 8: 14, 16).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Immortal man was and is God's image or idea, even the infinite expression of infinite Mind, and immortal man is coexistent and coeternal with that Mind . . . Immortal man is not and never was material, but always spiritual and eternal." (p. 336).

Some of the outstanding accomplishments to their credit is teaching the Girl Scouts Civilian protection and fire-fighting as outlined by the Department of National Resources, State Division of Forestry. They organized the Officers' Club in Carmel.

They equipped and managed the Canteen Service for the soldiers on outpost duty. They recruited volunteers for the Day Nursery in Monterey. They transported children to Fort Ord for blood typing and took them also to Salinas County Hospital for T.B. readings and checkups.

They collected the clothes, hats and shoes discarded by our soldiers and took them to the Red Cross, Bundles for Britain and the Thrift Shop. They assisted the Red Cross and other agencies as well as the U.S. government and the Civilian Defense program as the needs arose. They transported and chaperoned girls for the dances at Camp Roberts last summer. They worked with the U.S. employment office, sold bonds and helped in the drive for funds for the USO.

The work of the AWVS never conflicts or duplicates the work of the Red Cross or other welfare organizations. The AWVS at all times tries to live up to its motto, "Unite and Serve."

Pardon My Sarong, Title Of Comedy Feature

Leading with Abbott and Costello in "Pardon My Sarong" which opens Sunday for a three day run, the Carmel Theater brings several of the season's hit pictures for the coming week's program.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello have portrayed detectives, cowboys, sailors, soldiers, mechanics and carnival spielers in their brief but spectacular career. In "Pardon My Sarong," surrounded by a galaxy of headliners, they appear as bus drivers who later become castaways on an uncharted South Sea island. And, the fun begins. With them in the supporting cast are: Virginia Bruce, Robert Paige, Leif Erikson, Lionel Atwill and The Four Ink Spots. On the program for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday with "Pardon My Sarong" is the timely "March of Time No. 2" and other short subjects.

Norma Shearer's fans will welcome her new hit picture, "Her Cardboard Lover," which opens at the Carmel Wednesday. Robert Taylor is the co-star, combining his talents with Miss Shearer for the first time since their real triumph in "Escape." This is a comedy from the play by Jacques Deval, directed by George Cukor. The double feature for Wednesday and Thursday in Van Heflin's starring role in "Grand Central Murder" with pretty Patricia Dane as the glamorous victim and Virginia Grey as Heflin's wife and assistant who helps him solve the crime.

Heflin's friends recall him as Robert Taylor's pal in the excellent picture, "Johnny Eager," and welcome him now in his roles as a star.

Friday and Saturday the Carmel Theater shows "Men Of Texas" and "It Happened In Flat-bush." "Men Of Texas" is a picture based on the deviltry and romance of the post Civil War days in the Lone Star State with thundering adventure, born of the Alamo and bred of the courage of Sam Houston, as its theme. A cast to satisfy everyone's tastes includes Robert Stack, Brod Crawford, Anne Gwynne, Jack Cooper, Ralph Bellamy, Jane Darwell and Leo Carrillo. The companion picture, "It Happened In Flat-bush" is a saga of the Brooklyn ball club starring Lloyd Nolan and Carole Landis. Right in the midst of a red-hot pennant race, the club changes managers and Carole Landis as the major stockholder is anxious to sell her shares. Open House in Carmel Library Children's Room

The big week of the year for children's libraries comes just before the winter holidays, November 15-21. The event is Book Week, during which time the Carmel Library will hold open-house in the children's room, where the tables will be laden with amusing, colorful picture books such as the adventures of Ambrose Kangaroo and Albert Platypus in "Ambrose Kangaroo," "Puff Ball," the story of the lovable white pony; and Timothy, who fell asleep by imagining himself in "The Truck That Flew."

Appealing books with more text are: "Nikkernik, Nakkernak and Nokkernok," three quaint be-whiskered men who caught a lion in their cabinet and went to the animal's party given at the zoo; "Hippo"; and one that will please the Freddy fans, "Freddy and the Perilous Adventure." Some pertinent books are: "Ocean Outposts," which describes such islands as the Philippines, Wake, Guam and Samoa; "Fighting Planes of the World," and "Fighting Ships of the U.S. Navy." For older boys and girls, we are offering "Jamba, the Elephant," the exciting adventures of Bomi, who trained the stubborn, noble Jamba; and "Carol Plays Summer Stock," a summer with a jolly group of little theater people, who give us the feel of theater work. In other words, we have books for all ages and interests.

In addition to an unusual collection of attractive new books, we expect to display pupils' artistic interpretation of stories they have chosen.

For parents who have been racking their brains for Christmas ideas, we suggest they become acquainted with the books we have on display. Patrons and friends are cordially invited to browse through the new books from Nov. 15-21.
